Richard Green a striking member of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers stands on guard behind Gim's restaurant where management personnel have connected gas lines. Green said if one of the men currently on strike had installed this piping he would immediately be sent back to fix it, or perhaps even be fired. Green claims management do not have the proper personnel to install or maintain gas equipment. The union has been on strike for three and half months.

Budget surplus raises election fever to a boil

VICTORIA (CP) — Release of the British Columbia Financial and Economic Review, which shows a surplus of $140.5 million for the last fiscal year, is fanning election fires in the province.

And Premier Bill Bennett added a spark when he announced Wednesday that his government is considering increasing the homeowner's grant to reduce the property tax burden.

Oct. 30, a Monday, is the date most touted by political pundits.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe, who released the economic review Wednesday, wouldn't say whether the report was a prelude to a provincial election but he would be willing to fight an election on its figures.

"I feel very confident in terms of it supporting the job we've done. It's a good, responsible picture of management of public affairs from a finance point of view."

Bennett, addressing the Union of B.C. Municipalities, also said municipalities will be receiving even more generous grants in future, depending on the state of the economy.

The economic review said revenue, for the fiscal year which ended March 31, totalled $4.14 billion while expenditure was $4 billion. The balanced budget for the year had called for expenditure of $3.83 billion. The surplus for the previous year was $76.2 million.

Wolfe refused to respond to suggestions his government was reverting to a ploy used by the Social Credit administration of W. A. C. Bennett, the premier's father, of underestimating revenue and over-estimating expenditure, then producing a surplus in time for an election.

Election speculation has been circulating since April 10 when Wolfe presented a balanced $4.28 billion budget for the current fiscal year, and Bennett said he would have no reservations about taking the financial package to the people.

The budget included tax cuts, and funds for various high-profile special programs such as highway construction and airport improvements, and $76 million for job-creating projects.

The high profile the premier and his ministers have been exhibiting, particularly since July, revived that speculation.

Bennett travelled from Victoria to Courtenay in support of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway CP Rail wants to close and announced grants totalling more than $1 million in communities served by the Vancouver Island line.

Since then, he and his ministers have announced millions of dollars in communities for airport improvements, colleges, energy projects, municipal projects and highways.

Cabinet ministers have been calling news conferences to announce projects normally made public by news release and presenting cheques to various communities or organizations in person rather than using the mails.

When the federal government announced budget cuts totalling $3.5 billion, Bennett said in Cranbrook there would be no provincial tax increases to offset the reduced federal funding, that all proposed increased benefits would go ahead without cutbacks.

The premier has maintained a high profile in campaign-style tours and at the Pacific National Exhibition was photographed with each of the 38 Miss PNE contenders. The photos were sent to the girls' home-town newspapers.

In New Westminster, where he dispensed $1.9 million for the new Douglas College campus, he completed a two-day visit with a traffic-stopping kiss in the middle of a city intersection.

In Kelowna, Bennett said investors were leery of coming to B.C. because the New Democratic Party could be returned to power, and a new mandate would prove the election of his government three years ago was not a fluke. He revived this theme in Nanaimo, where he announced that development of a deep-sea port would go ahead without federal help.

The Social Credit party has just received 550,000 pieces of party literature, and the economic development ministry has just issued a glossy magazine saying why B.C. is a good investment. Walter Davidson (SC-Delta) says he has already reserved billboard space for an election call.

Opposition leader Dave Barrett, says his party is prepared to fight an election, but an election called at this time would be called by a government entangled in panic and fear.

Labour dispute flares up

The three-and-one-half month old strike by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers against Pacific Northern Gas has begun to heat up, and may yet boil over.

The company, apparently using management personnel, connected the main gas line to Gim's Restaurant in Terrace and turned it on.

The union, as soon as they discovered this Wednesday morning, began picketing Gim's, at which point an injunction was sought by the owners of Gim's to prevent further picketing.

Edna Foresman, from the Ministry of Labor here in Terrace, interviewed the strikers early Wednesday morning to determine under what conditions they would stop picketing.

She explained that her function was to supply information to the ministry so that a decision could be made regarding the convening of a full Labor Relations Board hearing to determine if the picketing is legal.

A union spokesman pointed out to the ministry representative that the fittings as installed did not meet specifications as outlined by the company, not to mention the energy board.

Richard Green, who is a member of the IBEW said that there has been no maintenance work done on building connections for the past three months, and according to Green, the company does not have the proper personnel to install new connections. "Some of these situations could become dangerous," Green added.

The union spokesman claimed that since the owners of Gim's knew of the strike and permitted the installation by non-union personnel they became "allies" of the company and could legally be picketed.

"Besides which there is another source of gas-propane available," Green said, "it is not like hydro, when it is not available you cannot open a new store," he added.

At press time the pickets were still in front of Gim's, and no word was available on whether or not a LRB hearing is being scheduled.

"We have acted responsibly during this strike, perhaps too responsibly," a union man, manning the pickets said.

NEAR PRINCE GEORGE

Small bridge, big problems

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — A small provincial forest service bridge east of here is creating a controversy over whether British Columbia jobs should be preserved, regardless of cost.

The forests ministry opened tenders July 6 on a 60.5-metre bridge across the Fraser River near Dome Creek, about 160 kilometres east of here.

Dominion Bridge Co. Ltd. submitted a bid of $416,305. Although B.C. workers would be hired for construction of the bridge, steel fabrication would be done in Alberta because Dominion's B.C. plant was sold in 1975. Britain steel also bid on the job, offering $423,057. That company has fabricating facilities in B.C.

The forests ministry awarded the contract to Dominion on July 20.

The International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers claims that 30 jobs will be lost in B.C. and has petitioned Forests Minister Tom Waterland to overturn the contract award.

The union says Britain would have been given the job if the province had applied a preference for B.C. firms whose bids were not more than five per cent above outside competitors.

The provincial government does have a B.C. first rule with regard to purchasing goods, but it does not cover the awarding of contracts.

A forests ministry spokesman said in a telephone interview from Victoria Wednesday to apply the B.C.-first policy to contracts would lead to complications.

He said contractors hire a number of subcontractors on many projects and it would be difficult to enforce the policy.

Meanwhile, Tom Lauriente, general manager of Dominion, said in a telephone interview from Vancouver the situation is being blown out of proportion.

Preliminary fabrication work on the bridge has already started.

Japanese fish workers provoke labour inquiry

JUNEAU, Alaska (CP) — The state department of labor has begun an investigation into the employment of Japanese nationals in Alaska cold storage and salmon cannery facilities, officials say.

Dale Cheek, director of the wage and hour division, said the probe centred on complaints from Alaska labor unions of widespread abuse of work visas issued to non-immigrant Japanese.

Cheek said the Japanese are supposed to limit their work to supervising the packing of salmon eggs for sale in their native country, but that they have been performing other duties as well.

"As we see it, those people are allowed into the country to supervise," Cheek said.

"We can't have those guys out there gilling, running forklifts, etc. With our unemployment rate what it is, we damn sure don't want those people taking jobs away from Alaskans."

Cheek said there are several hundred Japanese employed in Alaska salmon processing facilities, but an exact number is hard to pin down.

Postal strikes Friday if contract talks fail

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Gilles Lamontagne said Wednesday he will resume contract talks with leaders of the 19,000-member Letter Carriers Union of Canada in an effort to head off a series of rotating strikes scheduled to begin Friday.

"The cabinet explored all possible avenues and we will try to find a solution," Lamontagne said, as he emerged from a day-long cabinet meeting in the nearby Gallineau Hills.

"But I am caught between the government's restraint program and union demands that go beyond the acceptable limits. There's no easy solution."

The postmaster-general indicated that Parliament is not likely to be recalled immediately to put an end to the planned strike.

However, he did not rule out that possibility should rotating strikes interfere with the public interest.

Robert McGarry, president of the letter carriers' union, was not immediately available for comment.

Negotiations are stalled on the issue of wages. The government has rejected union proposals for a cost-of-living formula (that is 19 cents more than the government says it can accept over the life of a proposed 18-month contract.

DEAL MADE

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — A tentative agreement was reached Wednesday between Cariboo College and its 73 nonteaching employees, who have been locked out since Aug. 18.

Chuck Bishop, college affairs manager, said a memorandum of agreement was signed with Local 900 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees at the labor ministry offices in Vancouver.

Last Monday, the college council announced a one-week closure of the college in this Interior British Columbia city because of disruptions caused by the labor dispute.

The Cariboo College student association said Wednesday it had asked its lawyer to initiate a breach-of-contract suit against the college for monetary losses such as travel expenses, housing and utility deposits incurred by the students because of the closure.

WAS THE FIRST

Native village hosts Lions

Canyon City Village was over-run with Lions recently when 50 Lions and ladies arrived by chartered bus and automobiles to attend the charter night celebrations for the new Canyon City Lions Club.

Club delegates came from Terrace Centennial, Terrace Downtown, Kitimat, Port Edward, Prince Rupert, Prince Rupert Kaien Island, Smithers, Vancouver East and Sandspit.

Also a number of visiting dignitaries were in attendance including: Past District Governors, Dick Pierce, and Alan Pierce, along with his wife Phyllis, both from Vancouver Central; Lions International Multiple District 19 Secretary Gordon Smith from Bellingham, Washington, and his wife Beryl; and the guest speaker, Past Multiple District 19 Cabinet Secretary, John Stephens from Elma, Washington.

Following a seafood banquet, introductions and tall-twisting greetings were extended by the Nishga Tribal Council vice-president Rob Robinson who emphasized the international nature and fellowship present in the Lions organization.

Upon accepting the club's charter, President Bill Young, a Salvation Army captain, assured everyone present that the new club will be extremely active.

In its first three months of operation, it has already hosted a native soccer tournament, and it has donated sound equipment costing $1,000 to the village.

During the evening a special presentation was made to two individuals: one to Past District Governor Al Purschke, and to Lion Hugh Hepburn for his work as zone chairman.

The new club is the first ever to be chartered in a B.C. native village and enthusiasm was certainly present among the new members.

Each of the 23 new members was wearing a Lion vest, made by the village ladies, each one bearing the Lions International crest and a design of one of the four tribes in the village, that is: Eagle, Wolf, Raven or Killer Whale.

summit meeting Wednesday night aimed at wrecking the Camp David agreements, isolating President Anwar Sadat and forging an effective counter-balance to Israel's military might.

Called to discuss the Middle East peace accords fashioned at Camp David, the summit brought together the leaders of Syria, Algeria, South Yemen, Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

Khaled Fakhour, the moderate speaker of the Palestinians' parliament-in-exile, told Reuters Wednesday: "We would welcome an increased Soviet role in the Middle East to counter the anti-Palestinian stand of the United States."

No formal agenda was drafted for the meeting, expected to last until Friday.

THEY LIKE THEIR NAME

VANCOUVER, Wash. (CP) — Vancouver, Wash. voters like the name of their city the way it is.

They voted by a 70.4 per cent margin Tuesday against a proposal to vote on changing their city's name, which some viewed as a way to end confusion with Vancouver, British Columbia to the north.

With all 179 precincts counted, 5,131 persons voted against any effort to change the name of this southwest Washington city on the Columbia River.

A favorable vote would have put on a later ballot the question of what to call the city.

A purely advisory question on whether to change the name to Fort Vancouver also was unpopular. Only 2,177 persons said they liked the sound of Fort Vancouver, while 4,932 or 69.3 per cent said they did not.

Vancouver city councilman Martin Wolf led the drive to place the name-change issue on the ballot. He said the Canadian Vancouver runs away with prize in any name familiarization contest.

Fort Vancouver was established by the Hudson's Bay Co. in 1825. The City of Vancouver was incorporated in 1857. The city now has a population of about 45,000.

Gov't watching out for troops

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is keeping a close watch on peace developments in the Middle East to see how the more than 1,000 Canadian peacekeeping troops there will be affected.

"We are keeping our ear to the ground to see if there are any agreements that will require a change in the mandate to the United Nations forces there," an external affairs official said Wednesday.

The troops are attached to the United Nations Emergency Force (UNEF) and the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF). Most are with UNEF which patrols the Israeli-Egyptian border. UNDOF is along the Syrian-Israeli boundary.

The external affairs official said last weekend's Camp David agreement could lead to redeployment of UNEF if there is a phased withdrawal of Israeli troops from the Sinai peninsula.

Tasks and responsibilities of the UN peace force might change and there could be some reductions, he said. These issues may be raised when the UN considers renewing the UNEF mandate Oct. 24. The UNDOF renewal will be debated in November.

The armed forces would welcome a reduction in troops or complete withdrawal from the Middle East as the communications and maintenance specialists assigned to UNEF are already stretched.

Some specialists now are serving their third or fourth six-month tour of duty in the Middle East.

The government put its foot down when the UN sought Canadian experts for the new United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) last spring. Ottawa said Canada would join the force only until Oct. 1 and has stuck with this stipulation. The 117 Canadian troops are leaving UNIFIL in early October.

However, Canada has remained in UNEF since the force was thrust between the Israelis and Egyptians after the 1973 Middle East war.

The Canadian contingents in UNEF and UNDOF provide communications, equipment maintenance and air transport help for the peacekeeping forces.

NEWS IN BRIEF

United States State Secretary Cyrus Vance met with King Hussein in Amman Wednesday, opening a diplomatic drive aimed at making the Camp David accords more palatable to wary Jordan and Saudi Arabia and to keep hard-line Syria from derailing the agreement.

Vance was understood to have applied strong pressure on Hussein, telling him that opposition to the plan could damage U.S.-Jordanian relations. Hussein relies heavily on U.S. military and economic assistance.

Vance also was reported to have told the Jordanian ruler it was in his best interest to participate in the negotiations called for in the accords, since Jordan will be neighbor to whatever Palestinian entity emerges from the talks on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

Vance was scheduled to meet with three other Arab leaders—King Khaled and Crown Prince Fahd of Saudi Arabia in Riyadh today and Friday, and President Hafez Assad of Syria in Damascus on Saturday.

Vorster plans to quit

PRETORIA (AP) — Prime Minister John Vorster announced Wednesday he is resigning for health reasons after 12 years as South Africa's unchallenged political leader.

His departure was likely to trigger a power struggle over who will direct the racially-divided country.

He also said South Africa will go ahead with elections this year leading to independence for the disputed territory of South-West Africa, also known as Namibia.

Vorster, 63, told a news conference he could no longer fulfill the duties of office, but he said he would be available for the largely ceremonial job of president.

A caucus of Vorster's National party, dominated by conservative Afrikaners, is to meet Sept. 28 in Cape Town to pick a new president and prime minister.

The new prime minister likely will face a flurry of international censure for its go-it-alone decision on Namibia.

He's the prince of what?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man driving a turquoise, rhinestone-studded Lincoln with Prince Bander written on the doors and trunk lid registered as Prince Bander Al Saad when he checked into a downtown hotel Tuesday.

A Prince Bander Saad pleaded not guilty by reason of diplomatic immunity in Oregon Monday to charges of assaulting a Portland, Ore. woman.

And a Prince Bander Bin Saud Bin Sad Al Saud said here last January that Vancouver-based companies could lose more than $71 million in contracts if he was prevented from taking some B.C. falcons to Saudi Arabia.

The prince's secretary answered the hotel phone Tuesday and said the prince could not be disturbed. He denied that the prince is the man charged with assault, or the falcon enthusiast.

However, a hotel employee positively identified the prince as the man who made the comments about the falcons.

The falcon prince said in January that he had a brother in Portland.

Gas bill finds support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd said Wednesday there is majority support in the U.S. Senate for the natural gas bill sought by President Carter.

But a House of Representatives member said the measure still could collapse if administration and congressional leaders take House support for the plan for granted.

Representative Philip Sharp (Dem. Ind.) said the bill that would lift federal price controls from newly discovered gas in 1985 faces as much trouble in the House as it did in the Senate.

Sharp, head of a 30-member committee seeking support for the plan, said a preliminary sounding in the House shows "we have a major battle ahead of us."

The Senate is scheduled to take a final vote next Wednesday. The House has not yet acted on the compromise measure.

Byrd told reporters Senate supporters would be able to defeat any new attempt to block the final vote, even though opponents are organizing for one last attack on the legislation.

150,000 tourists expected

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than 150,000 tourists are expected to visit the Adams River between Oct. 7 and Oct. 22 to witness the four-year cyclical return of more than one million sockeye salmon, government spokesmen say.

The river, the most prolific spawning grounds of the Fraser River system, is one of the most accessible in the province. It flows for more than four kilometres between Adams and Shuswap lakes midway between Kamloops and Salmon Arm in the B.C. interior.

To aid in viewing, platforms have been built over the shallow river bed and arrangements have been made for educational displays.

The two-week project is sponsored jointly by federal and provincial government departments, the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission and the Fisheries Association of B.C.

Sawmill planned

VANCOUVER (CP) — Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. said Wednesday it plans to build a $45.7 million sawmill at its Fraser Mills plant in nearby Coquitlam.

Company chairman R. G. Rogers said the new mill will be constructed in three stages and will replace the existing sawmill built in 1892.

Work will begin immediately on a planer mill to be followed by the sawmill and other related facilities, Rogers said.

The construction is part of the company's $250 million modernization program which includes a recently-completed $16.3 million green veneer plant at Fraser Mills.

Rogers said that competitive forces in the forest industry demand that the antiquated sawmill be replaced by machinery that can handle the increasing number of smaller logs coming from the woods.

he said the construction will require a net reduction of the 350 employees at the existing mill but attrition and retraining will offset the shift in manpower requirements.

Doctors warned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration Wednesday warned doctors against using a drug to speed up labor in women merely for the sake of convenience.

The agency said oxytocin, a synthetic hormone, should not be used for elective inductions, although it remains an important drug for inducing labor when medical complications occur.

FDA spokesman Wayne Pines said the agency was acting because the drug carries a risk for both the mother and baby.

He said oxytocin is widely used, and accused some doctors of giving it to women simply so they can schedule their deliveries better.

Its use remains important in complicated births such as the cases of women with Rh factor problems, diabetes or ruptured membranes, Pines said.

Parke, Davis Co. markets the drug under the brand name Pitocin.

Police nab robbery suspect

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Police have arrested a suspect wanted by Winnipeg police in a $1 million bank robbery.

Police said Gordon A. Kendall, 32, was arrested Sunday at a downtown hotel. Two other suspects in the robbery were being held—a woman in Winnipeg and a man in Las Vegas, Nev.

Kendall is to appear in provincial court here Thursday.

THEY MAY SUE

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP)

— The Cariboo College student association said Wednesday it has asked its lawyer to initiate a breach-of-contract suit against the college in the wake of a labor dispute that has resulted in the college's closure.

Association president Kelvin Stretch said the proceedings will be launched because of monetary losses incurred by the students such as travel expenses, housing and utility deposits.

"Our prime interest at this time is to get the college reopened and running," Stretch said.

Last Monday, Care in thilge council announced a one-week closure of the college in this Interior British Columbia city because of disruptions caused by a dispute between the college and its non-teaching employees.

The dispute began Aug. 18 when the 73 employees, members of Local 900 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, were locked out.

College officials have said that union and college representatives will meet during the closure in an attempt to resolve the dispute.

No monetary figure of losses has been included with the suit because the "breach is ongoing," Jensen said.

There are about 100 faculty members and about 2,000 students at the college.

Saves Her Kisses For Her Brothers

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My wife of 29 years hates love-making. She often says she finds the whole idea "revolting." In fact, she doesn't even want to be kissed.

The odd thing is that when she is with any of her three brothers, it's kissy, kissy, kissy, all the time. Good morning kisses, good night kisses, and hello and goodbye kisses. (And she kisses them in between times, too.)

Although I have never strayed from the straight and narrow, I know that women find me attractive. I mention this because you usually take the wife's side in any marital squabble.

What do you make of this situation? I am not jealous. I am merely ...

MYSTIFIED IN OAKLAND

DEAR MYSTIFIED: Your wife probably fears that your kisses are just the preliminary to the "revolting" main event—an unlikely event with her brothers.

She needs counseling on the role of sex in a "successful" (sic) marriage.

DEAR ABBY: Apparently you never dated someone who bestowed "ishy kisses," like the girl who wrote you about a poor kisser she dated.

You said, "Kiss him the way you'd like to be kissed. Then hang on to your hat!"

Not always so! I am happily married, but when I was dating I enjoyed kissing so much I always looked forward to the end of the evening. Some guys can kiss, and some can't. Some can eventually learn and some absolutely never learn.

I know, because I'm married to a great guy who just can't seem to get the hang of it. And I've been kissing him the way I'd like to be kissed for ten years. I'm not complaining, and I wouldn't trade my husband for the world, but when I think of some of those super kissers I dated, I emit a secret sigh. Sign me ...

HOT LIPS

DEAR HOT: Don't give up. Tell your husband what he's doing right, and what he's doing wrong, and what he's not doing that he should be doing. Your great guy has the same equipment those super kissers had. All he needs is some instruction on how to use it.

DEAR ABBY: Without commenting on the legal, moral, or social aspects of the situation, here are the facts: My son and his girl friend, who are living together, have announced that they are going to have a baby. They are very happy about it. The girl's friends have "showered" her with gifts. As far as I know, the prospective parents have no plans to marry in the immediate future.

My question: How do I announce the birth of my first grandchild? Is there a way I can show my love and acceptance of this child—just as I love and accept my son—without seeming too inconsiderate of others who may who may have a strong opposition to such a situation? Sign me ...

FIRST TIME GRANDMA

DEAR FIRST TIME: Don't make an official announcement. Your obvious love and acceptance of the child will speak for itself. The "others" who oppose such a situation must surely realize that you are not responsible for your son's actions.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I can't solve alone. I am very much attracted to a handsome New Hampshire state trooper I've seen, but I don't know how to meet him.

His license number is 206. Do you think if I were to speed and get stopped the next time I saw him, it might help? I don't want to be tacky.

DESPERATE IN KEENE

DEAR DESPERATE: I don't recommend breaking the law in order to break the ice. If you don't want to be "tacky," you'd better find someone who knows him—and something about him. Your handsome No. 206 may have a wife and six kids at home.

COMMERCIAL

The Durable, All-Purpose Sweeper

Just another commercial sweeper. No way, there isn't another floor and carpet sweeper made that cleans like the Hoky 24S. We guarantee it. Pick up dirt, dirt, broken glass, cigarettes from nearly any type of floor surface. Is the Hoky 24S durable? You bet. Wheels, axles and corner brushes are built in sturdy assembly. That makes the Hoky 24S the world's only modular built floor and carpet sweeper. And its all-steel body stands up to the toughest punishment.

SLEEPS ON BENCHES, BARNS

Hamer spans nation

Terrace's own Murray Hamer has been quietly cycling across Canada since August 15. He passed through the town of Harrison, Ontario September 13, having travelled 2500 miles, averaging 130 miles per day to that point.

Murray, 25, is on a trip which will eventually take him to Scotland. Since he is travelling light, and not carrying a tent, he has slept in barns and hayfields, on picnic tables, and on benches.

At last report, received in the Herald office yesterday afternoon, Murray is presently closing in Montreal, where he plans to catch a Russian cruise ship for London, England Monday.

There he would like to trace his family tree, and visit relatives in England and Scotland. He is hoping to obtain a job in Glasgow manufacturing bag pipes.

Eventually he plans to visit Germany, just to learn their language.

NHL appealing McCourt case

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League announced Wednesday it will appeal a United States federal judge's ruling that Detroit Red Wings centre Dale McCourt does not have to report to Los Angeles Kings as compensation for Detroit's signing of former Kings goalie Rogatien Vachon.

NHL president John Ziegler said in a statement: "The National Hockey League and its counsel have now had an opportunity to review the court's opinion. It is our counsel's firm opinion that the court committed reversible errors in its conclusion of facts and interpretation of the applicable law. Consequently, I have instructed counsel to prosecute and appeal to the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals as quickly as the court rules will permit.

"It is my opinion that the NHL must exercise every effort to preserve the sanctity of the collective bargaining agreement which includes equalization, one of its essential provisions.

"This is crucial to the well being of every player, every employee and every club in the National Hockey League. In the meantime, the NHL will, of course, abide by the preliminary ruling of the court."

Judge Robert DiMascio of U.S. District Court issued a temporary restraining order Monday which allowed McCourt to stay with the Red Wings while he pursues a lawsuit against the NHL, the Kings and Wings and the NHL Players' Association in an effort to overturn an arbitrator's decision that he go to Los Angeles.

The arbitrator awarded McCourt to Los Angeles after the Kings and Wings were unable to agree on compensation for Detroit's signing of Vachon who had played out his contract with the Kings.

A suspenseful moment for both forward and goalie alike during Monday's Commercial Hockey League practice of the new season.

Commercial hockey season near

Approximately 100 hockey players turned out for the first Commercial Hockey League practice of the season Monday night. There is another practice slated for tonight at the arena, and even if you missed Monday's practice, if you are interested in playing Commercial Hockey this season, you can still show up at tonight's practice, which is open to anyone, rookie and veteran alike. The practice is at 8:30 p.m. at the Arena. Another practice will be held Monday, September 25, from 9 to 11 p.m. for new players ONLY. This is to give the coaches time to look over this year's crop of rookies, so they can prepare for Tuesday's draft.

Canucks new 'policeman'

COURTENAY, B.C. (CP) — Randy Holt says his Grizzly Adams appearance is a psychological ploy he has used to advantage in the National Hockey League.

Holt is a bear of a man who this season likely will be playing defence for Vancouver Canucks, one of the more placid teams in the NHL for the last few years. In Holt, the Canucks figure they now have a player who can protect some of his more timid team-mates.

He showed up at training camp this week-Holt was drafted from Cleveland after the franchise merged with Minnesota North Stars during the summer-complete with beard and a reputation for a quick temper on the ice.

"I look like a crazy man," Holt said Tuesday, "and that's to my advantage because they (opposing players) think they might be running into a nut."

"If you know a guy is going to fight to the end just because he's too dumb to quit, you'll think twice about going."

"But there are only four or five guys in the league who'll fight me now."

Holt said he had 25 fights last season with Cleveland Barons, about 15 more than anyone else in the league. One of his opponents was Jack McIlhargey of the Canucks, now a team-mate. McIlhargey and Holt are in a group of 12 defencemen seeking six positions with the Canucks and new coach Harry Neale wants one of the defencemen to be able to play on the wing as well.

Holt said he played briefly at right wing in Cleveland when injuries struck the Barons and his versatility just might be the difference when Neale cuts his roster in two weeks for the regular-season schedule.

The 25-year-old native of Pembroke, Ont., began last season with Chicago Black Hawks and later was sold to Cleveland, where his aggressive play earned him an instant reputation.

Holt said he hopes no one at the Canuck camp here wants to fight in scrimmages "to get a reputation. I pity the guy. I'll tear him apart."

He said he's looking forward to playing with the Canucks because, for the first time in years, he'll have some help in tough situations with the presence of McIlhargey, Harold Snepsts and possibly Brad Gassoff in the Vancouver lineup.

"I don't go looking for fights," Holt said, "but then they all say that."

"I'm a little bit crazy when I get on the ice... I don't take crap."

"And who's to say Harry (Snepsts), Jack (McIlhargey) and I and maybe Gassoff don't go through the league once-win or lose-and show the other teams we're not going to get pushed around, like I understand happened here last year."

"The next time they play us, our finesse guys have it much easier. You can also play better on the road if you have respect."

Respect is something Neale has in mind for the Canucks and Holt, it seems, is ready to do his part for the coach.

SPORTS BRIEFS

SHORTSTOP ILL

ARACAIBO, Venezuela (AP) — Luis Aparicio, an outstanding shortstop for 18 years in major league baseball until his retirement in 1974, was in intensive care Wednesday after undergoing an emergency operation Tuesday for internal bleeding. Aparicio, 44, was manager last year of the Zulia Aguilas in the Venezuelan baseball league. He played in the majors with Chicago White Sox, Boston Red Sox and Baltimore Orioles.

GREEN ON FIVE DAY TRYOUT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Offensive tackle Louis Green has been placed on a five-day trial by British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League.

Green was recently cut by Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League and last season played at the University of Alabama. He signed with Dallas as a free agent.

The six-foot-two, 260-pounder joined the Lions at practice Tuesday as B.C. began preparations for Sunday's Western Football Conference game in Winnipeg against the Blue Bombers.

The Lions used imports Al Simpson and Larry Watkins at offensive tackle last Sunday in Calgary when the Stampeders won 14-4. B.C. has been penalized numerous times this season for holding and coach Vic Rapp said the offensive line would have to improve if the team is to end a four-game losing streak.

It's called the 'jaws of life' Kitimat Fire Chief Bill Dawson looks on with some trepidation as one of his firemen uses the 'Jaws of Life' to cut off the door of a wrecked Chevy. The machine, which develops 12,000 pounds of pressure can cut through door hinges to free trapped accident victims. The Terrace Fire Department is asking for the help of local clubs and organizations to raise sufficient funds to enable the department to purchase the $9,000 machine.

NEW TOOL HERE

It could be life saver

by Nixon Baker

The Hurst Rescue Tool, known in the trade as the jaws of life because of its ability to chop through metal, had a difficult time building up its appetite Tuesday night. Firemen from Kitimat, including chief Bill Dawson were on hand to give the Terrace firemen a demonstration of the biting ability of the tool. However, for a short time the best the machine would do was nibble. The monster did however live up to expectations as the evening crew on and managed to chop through the door hinges of a demolished Chevy. Some 30 or 40 persons were on hand to watch the demonstration including members of the Moose lodge and the Lions club who have donated funds toward the purchase of the Jaws of Life for the Terrace Fire Department. Although the evening had its humorous moments, the purpose of the machine is deadly serious. Many accident victims are crushed inside their vehicles during the accident. The single greatest problem fire-fighters often face is the fact that they cannot pry open the car to remove the injured people quickly enough.

With the use of this machine they can cut doors off the vehicle or cut right through the roof in a matter of minutes allowing them to remove the injured.

The jaws, which are powered by an air compressor engine, develop 12,000 pounds force both opening and closing.

Cost of the machine is approximately $9,000 and slightly over $4,000 has been raised. The fire department is looking for assistance from other service clubs throughout the area to help raise the remainder.

Fire Chief Cliff Best emphasized that the machine would be used throughout the Terrace area, not just within the city limits.

Mel Stokes, spokesman for the Lions club noted that the Lions had raised their share towards the purchase from Riverboat Days, and that the firemen themselves had attended and raised $300 themselves.

THEY HAD TO COME HERE

From England to Terrace

By Chris Porter

Bruce Wilson, the nephew of one of Terrace's earliest residents, spurred on by childhood memories of romantic tales told to him by his uncle of that mysterious land on the other side of the sea known as "Kitsumkalum", finally fulfilled a lifelong dream by visiting this area last week.

Wilson's uncle, William (Billy) Bruce, first visited the Terrace area in 1906. An immigrant from Scotland, he worked for Ed Eby, one of Terrace's founders, who had a small store at the mouth of the Kalum River at the time. Bruce stayed around until the outbreak of World War I in 1914, when he travelled overseas to France to fight. Following the war, he returned to the Terrace area, where using a loan from his brother, he purchased a small piece of land, thinking it contained copper. As things turned out, the property contained no copper whatsoever. Bruce sold the timber on the land in order to salvage something out of his investment. Eventually the holding was sold to the CNR which needed the land to make room for the railway being built at the time. Bruce eventually ended up in Ocean Falls, where it's believed he died sometime around 1936.

Wilson was born in Aberdeen, Scotland in 1917, where he lived until 1940. During World War II, he served with the medical corps as a pharmacist attached to the Eleventh East African Division. After the war, he moved to Crawley, in Sussex, England. Residing there until 1953, he then purchased a pharmacy business in Westcliff, Part of Essex County, England, and located approximately 40 miles east of London. He recently sold his pharmacy, and flew with his wife Jolie from England to Vancouver where they visited relatives in the Vancouver-Victoria area. From Victoria the two travelled to Kelsey Bay, on the northwest coast of Vancouver Island, where they took the Queen of Prince Rupert to her namesake port. They visited Terrace for a few days and thoroughly enjoyed the whole experience.

"There's magnificent scenery around here, and the vastness of it all is breathtaking," Wilson said. "We love it out here." "The people," Wilson said, "are so hospitable and friendly, and we've really enjoyed our trip."

The Wilsons left on last night's train for Vancouver, where they will visit relatives until October 1.

Tories promise stability

HALIFAX (CP) — Nova Scotians can expect less government interference in their affairs, stabilized electricity rates, reduced unemployment and no increase in taxes over the next four years as a result of the Progressive Conservative victory in Tuesday's provincial election.

These were among promises given in the Conservative election platform and, combined with an anti-government mood, were credited by Conservatives on Wednesday with giving them victory over the Liberals—a victory sought since 1970 when the PCs were turned out by the Liberals.

In Tuesday's election, the Conservatives reversed their 1974 election standings by winning 31 seats to 17 for the Liberals and four for the New Democrats.

Among those caught in the Tory landslide were eight Liberal cabinet ministers and all but two of 14 Halifax metropolitan-area members.

Conservative Leader John Buchanan, a 47-year-old Spryfield lawyer who has led the party since 1971, met with party officials Wednesday to plan the change of government. He is expected to take over as premier in a week to 10 days.

Premier Gerald Regan will meet with his cabinet today to discuss the transfer of power.

The Conservative platform was based on four main issues: social justice, employment, stabilizing the cost of energy and restructuring government management.

Much of it dealt with administrative changes, with Buchanan promising some specifics observers expect he will be hard pressed to deliver.

These involve halving the 11-per-cent unemployment rate in his first term, subsidizing electric power rates and eventually bringing them down to the national average, opening new coal mines and modernizing the Sydney steel plant.

The failure of the Liberals to control increases in Nova Scotia power rates, Canada's second highest, was blamed by many, including Premier Gerald Regan, for the party's defeat.

The Conservatives propose a subsidy to hold down recently approved across-the-board increases of 16 to 18 per cent while working on long-term solutions such as a greater use of coal for generation and long-term agreements to purchase power from Newfoundland.

Safety precautions queried

VANCOUVER (CP) — The city's fire chief says he is dissatisfied with the safety precautions used to transport highly inflammable or poisonous chemicals through the city. Konig said it is irresponsible to move 40 cars filled with highly inflammable liquid gas.

Bond issue offered

OTTAWA (CP) — The government took another step Wednesday to aid the struggling dollar by announcing it expects to offer another $750 million U.S. bond issue for sale in New York.

Finance Minister Jean Chretien made the announcement shortly after the dollar fell to a new 45-year low of 85.43 cents U.S. on the New York money market. The bond issue will be the third foreign borrowing of its kind this year by the federal government after a decade of avoidance of international bonds markets.

Last April, the government offered a $750 million U.S. bond issue in New York and later borrowed another $700 million U.S. in West German marks. Wednesday's announcement, which aims at supporting the dollar through a new influx of foreign capital, is the latest in a chain of actions by the government.

Chretien said in a statement that details of the planned offering will be made available when the government files a required registration statement with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission.

In addition to the borrowings, the government has raised its Bank of Canada interest rate four times since last March, arranged stand-by credits for loans with Canadian and foreign chartered banks and sold $3.2 billion in international reserves since the start of 1978, in efforts to defend the dollar.

Game checks start

The Ministry of Recreation and Conservation game check station at Cache Creek begins its 33 consecutive year of operation on September 16 and continues through November 15.

The station will be open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. each day, including weekends. In addition, periodic unscheduled night checks will be held.

The game check procedure only takes a few minutes, but provides valuable information that will be used for many years in developing better wildlife management policies. Sportsmen returning from a hunt and passing through Cache Creek during these open hours are required to stop and report. They will be asked to provide information about hunting activity including species and location hunted, time spent hunting, and success. Animals taken by successful hunters will be checked to determine sex, age and condition.

The Cache Creek game check is also one of a number of designated centres for compulsory reporting. All hunters taking grizzly bear, cougar, mountain sheep, mountain goat and caribou are required to have the animal checked for purposes of taking measurements and biological samples.

Deer, elk and mouse hunters will provide valuable information by voluntarily turning in the lower jaw, with teeth intact, of their game. Teeth are examined to determine the age of each animal.

All information gathered at check stations is processed by computer for reports on the mobility and effort of sportsmen and details of harvest for each species. Wildlife managers use the information to set hunting seasons and to effect good land management in cooperation with private land owners and the provincial Forest Service. These efforts are necessary, said Mr. Bawlf, to assure the maintenance of resources and recreation. Hunters are advised that strict enforcement of the Wildlife Act and Regulations will continue this year. There were a number of violations last year related to hunters passing the check station without reporting, and to lack of evidence of species and sex on game.

Hunters must ensure that adequate evidence of species and sex remains attached to the carcasses of all animals and game birds.

WEATHER

A low pressure area in the Gulf of Alaska continues to give B.C. cloudy, cool conditions. Occasionally a more active disturbance is expected to move into the coastal area bringing periods of overcast skies and rain. Today's forecast for the Terrace-Kitimat area is for cloudy skies and frequent showers. This afternoon's high should be around 14 degrees Celsius and the expected low for tonight is 7 degrees Celsius.

Canada earning sick reputation

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is earning a reputation as "the future sick man of the western industrialized world" by exposing the strains in its nationhood for all to see, says a University of Toronto law professor.

Gerald Morris, who specializes in international law, told the Senate committee studying the constitution Tuesday that top international traders are worried Canada is headed down a path to such decentralization that the federal government will lose its ability to develop national trade and economic policies.

"I hear consistently from people outside Canada—West Germans, Swiss, Americans—that they are disturbed by proposals for more decentralization," he said.

"They are amazed the federal government cannot keep the provinces in line. They don't see how we will be able to keep up in the cut-throat international competition for trade dollars if we cannot resolve this uncertainty over our political and constitutional future."

Morris said the government will be in serious trouble if it listens only to polls proving that the man on the street is not interested in what happens to the constitution.

"Internally I suppose we can do what we want as long as there is reasonable consensus in the country, but there is another controlling factor. It is extremely important for us to protect our interests on the world scene as a trading nation."

A main thrust of the federal constitutional reform plan is to give more power to the provinces, he said, although Canada already is recognized as the most decentralized federal state in the world.

"I must admit I have a reputation as a centralist and I may be biased in that direction, but I believe we should stop and think very seriously before further watering down our present federal arrangements."

Morris attacked the government's proposed House of the Federation as an example of a dangerous trend toward increased power for the provinces.

Under the federal plan, the 104-seat Senate would be replaced by a 118-seat House of the Federation, with half its members appointed by the provincial governments.

"I see this as being something of a recipe for instant national paralysis."

Another possibility that disturbs Morris is that the provincial governments will demand so much control over national resources that the federal government will lose its international authority as the economic decision-maker.

Morris, chairman of the first committee of the Canadian Bar Association on constitutional law in 1958, said he has become pessimistic in the last year about Canada's prospects for surviving as a nation.

"I wonder increasingly whether Canada is viable as a national state for the future. I have real doubts about whether we can resolve our constitutional difficulties."

Let's build our merchant marine

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — An immediate federal commitment to a long-term shipbuilding program in Canada is needed to save the industry from extensive layoffs, says New Democratic Party Leader Ed Broadbent.

Broadbent, here to campaign for his party in the Fundy Royal federal byelection, said today that the NDP advocates four specific moves to help shipbuilding recover from a current slump and grow.

The most important step is for the government to immediately announce a long-term shipbuilding program, he said.

Broadbent said Canada's foreseeable requirements include at least 30 ships to handle Arctic gas and oil, new icebreakers and a substantial number of new fishing vessels and coast guard vessels to ensure that Canada benefits from the 200-mile limit.

The government should say now what it plans to build and should space its ship construction so the industry can start controlled and planned expansion to meet projected needs, he said.

Reporters at a news conference following a tour of the Saint John Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. Ltd. yard.

Broadbent said the government should also renew a 20-per-cent subsidy program for new ships that is due to expire next month. He said a condition of the subsidy should be that yards agree to maintain their work forces.

He also called for policies to reduce the practice of Canadian shipping companies replacing old vessels or expanding their fleets with old ships from other countries. The old ships were often unsafe, he said.

Old ships purchased by Canadian companies should be required to meet the same standards as new ships, he said, and "in most cases ships over 25 years old should be banned from internal trade."

He said his discussions with members of the Irving family, owners of the shipyard here, indicated that his party's policy on shipbuilding would be welcomed by the industry.

His discussions with the Irvings today centred on the need for planning rather than subsidies, he said.

"The interests of the shipbuilding industry—the Irvings here in New Brunswick—are more closely identified with the NDP than any other party," he said. "Some people might find that ironic."

ELECTION REASONING

Profitable decision

OTTAWA (CP) About one quarter of the 249 federal MPs must have been silently relieved recently when Prime Minister Trudeau did not call a fall general election.

The reason—they all became eligible for lifetime pensions of at least $5,000 a year without having to worry about an accountability session with the public.

For 64 MPs who were first elected to the Commons in the Oct. 30, 1972, election and who were re-elected in 1974, the end of this October would have meant automatic elimination from the lucrative pension plan for parliamentarians.

MPs and senators are required to hold office for six years before they can collect pensions upon retirement or defeat—whichever comes first.

Currently, the minimum annual payment for MPs with six years' service on Oct. 30 would be $4,826. An MP defeated in the next election would immediately begin to collect for the rest of his or her life, unless that MP subsequently sought and won re-election.

Payment is calculated on the basis of 3.5 per cent of the average annual salary of all MPs for the last six years. That average now is about $23,000, including the $1,400 increase MPs voted themselves last Jan. 1.

It would take 25 years to accumulate the maximum payment of 75 per cent. The formula is based on 3.5 per cent for the first 10 years, three per cent for the next 10 and two per cent for years 21 to 25.

An MP elected in June, 1968, now would be eligible for a pension of 3.5 per cent times 10 years at the current average annual salary of $23,000. That works out to $8,050 a year for life.

In addition, the payment becomes indexed to the cost of living when the retired parliamentarian turns 60. The pension is raised to take into account inflation for the years between retirement as an MP and age 60. The government has proposed altering this indexing formula to one that would not guarantee increases to match inflation.

MPs now receive an annual salary of $26,900. An additional tax-free allowance of $12,000 is not included in pension calculations.

The program is compulsory for all MPs and senators. However, those who receive an additional salary, such as the $20,000 that goes to cabinet ministers, the opposition leader and the Speaker, have the option of including that in the pension fund.

Contributions are made on the basis of 7.5 per cent of salaries per year, and are deducted from monthly House of Commons paychecks.

A retired MP with 25 years of service now would be eligible for an annual pension of $17,250.

It is estimated there are between 200 and 300 former MPs and senators now collecting pensions. Senators, who are appointed by the prime minister, must retire at age 75.

The advantage goes to an MP who retires, for example, after six years service at age 35. He now would collect at least $5,000 a year for life. Assuming he collects for 40 years, that means he gets at least $200,000 on contributions of about $10,000.

AMERICAN-CANADIAN

Can you still call it local wine?

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia wineries are importing 400,000 gallons of white wine from the United States, but the U.S. product will not appear on liquor store shelves.

The foreign wine will be blended with local products and will appear under B.C. labels.

Vic Woodland, general manager of the liquor control and licensing branch, said Tuesday that B.C. wineries have been given permission to import the wine to make up for stocks depleted during a three-month strike-lockout at B.C. breweries.

Woodland said the branch is allowing wineries to import only enough to make up for the shortfall.

He said while there has been an increase in demand for white wine, the beer dispute meant that a winery which might have expected to sell 25,000 gallons sold 75,000 gallons.

"Some of the companies will be running out of inventory in November," he said, adding that the situation will not return to normal until next May.

NEWS BACKGROUND

Peace hangs in balance

WASHINGTON (CP) — Once again, the prospect of peace hangs precariously over the Middle East.

While millions of people in the war-torn region long for true peace, a hope unrealized for almost four decades—many others in positions of power are threatened by the prospect.

Their power, in many cases their whole reason for existence, rests on confrontation, war preparations, hatred and terrorism. For them, peace is indeed a spectre and for those reasons they are already preparing to undermine the fragile accord reached at Camp David.

The Palestinian Liberation Organization reacted immediately to news of the Egyptian-Israeli accord, threatening to intensify the PLO guerrilla war against Israel.

In making that threat, they won immediate encouragement from one U.S. Senator, Democrat James Abourezk of South Dakota, who denounced the accord as "an Israeli occupation under a different name" and said it would inevitably lead to more acts of violence.

For the PLO and their more extreme allies, peace on any terms would mean the traumatic reversal of the habits of a lifetime.

For almost all PLO members, victory would not mean access to power. Nations founded by terrorists have traditionally dispensed with those responsible for their founding, regarding them as a threat once independence is achieved.

The threat of intensified terrorist acts against Israel would not in itself undermine the Egyptian-Israeli accord, but the inevitable harsh Israeli response to new terrorism would.

Even under the comparatively moderate Israeli government that preceded the regime of Menachem Begin, the rule was inflexible: Any terrorist act was to be met with swift, ruthless reprisal.

Except for the unlikely case of that rule being changed, Israeli reprisals would antagonize the rest of the Middle East and even threaten the position of Egyptian ruler Anwar Sadat.

Nor will the PLO be alone in its attempts to overthrow the Camp David accord. Already, Syria has condemned the agreement, calling it "a phoney deal" and hard-line Iraq has contemptuously ignored it in official radio broadcasts.

The Soviet Union has also thrown its remaining influence against Camp David, calling the agreement the product of an imperialist plot against the peoples of the Middle East.

Opponents of the accord have more than just traditional animosities to exploit—there are several key weaknesses in the agreement that provide ample scope for hostile propaganda.

Chief of these is the unresolved issue of the West Bank and Gaza Strip territories occupied by Israel.

Begin has declared, "I believe with all my heart that the Jewish people have a right to sovereignty over Judea, Samaria and the Gaza Strip; the Bible gives us that right."

Throughout the rest of the Middle East, those are still fighting words.

But the gravest vulnerability of the peace effort is in Egypt, where Sadat's foreign minister resigned in protest over the Camp David agreement.

The ominous fact is that Israel so far has achieved peace with Sadat but not with Egypt.

A flare-up of Middle East animosity, a crisis sparked by terrorism and Israeli counter-terrorism, perhaps even just Egyptian economic problems—any of these could lead to Sadat's overthrow.

And, at any moment, an assassin's bullet could remove the Egyptian leader who has staked his future on peace.

The Camp David agreement engineered by Jimmy Carter remains an historic breakthrough, but still is also terrifyingly fragile.

OTTAWA OFFBEAT

BY RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — So the federal government is going to turn the post office into a crown corporation. Beyond caving in to the postal unions what's the conversion going to do for you?

Prevent strikes threatened by both the letter carriers and by the postal workers? Bring back dependable delivery service? Hold the line on postal rates? Reduce the post office deficit by improving efficiency, thus encouraging more use of the service and increasing revenues?

Not to be cynical about it, but quick, think of a crown corporation that hasn't been, from time to time, either a model of mismanagement, a consistent money-loser, involved in a scandal, periodically harassing the public. Think of only a few of them, and each has distinguished itself in one or more of those failings.

The CNR always and still deep in debt. Air Canada, addicted to high fares, route monopolies and prone to frequent strikes. Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, suspected of under-the-table foreign payoffs and other less than respectable business practices.

Petro-Can, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, and so many others that it takes nine pages of small print in the federal government phone book to list them along with federal boards, bureaus and commissions.

Not all of them have faced accusations, mostly in parliament, of operations of questionable ethics, but enough to cause the government anxious and politically embarrassed moments.

Take an objective, no-stars-in-the-eyes look at a crown corporation and what do you see?

A business operation taken out of the hands of private enterprise and delivered into the hands of the politicians and bureaucrats in the public interest, for the benefit of the taxpayers and the protection and profit of the national treasury? Not likely.

Although officially that's the objective of the crown corporation formation and operation.

Munitions and Supply Minister C.D. Howe, former wartime Prime Minister Mackenzie King's righthand man, "invented" the crown corporation.

He created it in the emergency of war to do a job that private industry couldn't instantly handle.

Broadly speaking, pre-war industry didn't have the massive amounts of capital required, lacked the executive organizational capacity and most of all the talent of putting it all together and make it work.

Howe had the capital — it was there in the national treasury — and the taxing powers to replenish it. Could put his fingers on the executive talent in various segments of industry and in different parts of the country. And best of all was able to bring them all together and make them jell.

After the war he dismantled a lot of his crown corporations as then unnecessary.

But since his day, various governments have embraced the crown corporation device as a convenient tool for the takeover of fields of private enterprise.

What's worse, though, is the second purpose to which governments have put their corporations.

Taking a clear-eyed, objective and practical view of them, they have become a repository for failed politicians, socialist academics, state monopolists and bandwagoning hacks on their boards of directors.

Nothing wrong with that, of course — especially for the beneficiaries of these government sinecures — except that your tax dollars are being used to make them comfortable in their crown corporate seats of power.

Just think of the opportunities that will open up for the politically deserving when the strike-crazy post office is converted into a strike-mad crown corporation.

Quebec carriers go step further

QUEBEC (CP) — Letter carriers here have pledged to go a step further than their national union in their contract dispute with the federal government by staging a general strike rather than following the executive's order for rotating strikes.

Officials of the 1,000-member Quebec City region local of the better Carriers Union of Canada said the workers voted Tuesday 95.4 per cent in favor of a general strike. A date for a walkout has not yet been set, although the national rotating strikes are scheduled to begin Friday.

Business agent Michel Morasse said the workers were unhappy with what they felt was weakness on the part of the national executive. "There had been pressure for the local to negotiate its own contract directly with the federal government."

Some workers said they will ignore any walkout orders given by their national union, to show their anger with the executive for opting for rotating strikes.

In Ottawa, union president Robert McGarry has said the mailmen decided against calling a general walkout so as not to delay family allowance and pension payments due at the end of the month.

McGarry refused to disclose what centres would be hit first by the rotating strikes, indicating only that large cities where businesses and plants are located would be likely targets.

The Quebec City local includes Quebec City and St. Maurice, Saguenay-Lac St. Jean, Abitibi East, and other areas on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River.

It is the second time in a year that postmen in Quebec have broken ranks with their counterparts in the rest of Canada. In September, 1977, the 6,000 mailmen in the province voted 52 per cent in favor of a strike, while letter carriers across the country voted to accept a one-year collective agreement.

CB NEWS

with DINO

Hi again everyone, hope all your past days have been good ones and that today will be even better yet.

This week's column will be a little on the short side, due to finally having reached that stage where once again I am running out of words (for today anyhow). Many thanks goes out to Super Cookie, Fifi and Geronimo, who have been cluing me in to a number of happenings these past few weeks. Without their help we probably would have been left with nothing more than our heading and a big 10-7....remember folks, this is YOUR column so how about parting with some of that info that you are storing away so that we may pass it on to the rest of the gang? If you can't reach me at my work 20, then give me a L.L. at 638-1952 (try it it really works.)

For those of you not in the know and who have been wondering why you haven't heard a certain charming voice over the two-way lately, it's because the one crazy legs has made like the birds and moved down south to make his home. This is one fella that a lot of people are going to miss, both in Kilmat and Terrace, and we all wish the very best for you and your family, in the future, Ron, and we also hope to be able to catch you on the old airwaves when conditions permit one day. Meantime a big howdy to you and yours, from all your buddies on this end and take special care.

Another true C.B.'er to leave our fair town and make his home in P.G. is Da Bookie...best wishes go with you too, John, and don't forget to look us up when you return for a visit to the good country, meantime give all the turkeys down at that end a big Gobble, Gobble for us.

Take this one to heart friends, and remember to NOT disturb Geronimo with any L.L.'s while he's engaged in watching Dumbo on TV, as the saying goes, no matter what, the show must go on. Right Ron??

Now on the more serious side, earlier last week, members of the G.R.S.-B.B.C., Super Cookie, Mai Tai and Tootle were on hand at the Jack Cook School to present them with a check for $1200 to use to purchase much needed equipment for the kiddies there. The check represented the proceeds from the last B.B.C. Valentines Dance...to all the workers and the people who attended this dance, we thank you for your part in helping to contribute, so that we may, in turn, help others in our towns where help is needed. As you all know, all proceeds from any function that the G.R.S.-B.B.C. put on are then donated to various local organizations in our community and in the future we hope to be able to contribute a lot more.

Speaking of C.B. Clubs, the Tomahawk Tribe, is another club that aids the community by donating their proceeds or buying equipment for the hospital and other organizations so don't forget that their big dance is coming up shortly on October 7 and plan to take it in. Tickets are available from the members and I have some at my work 20 if you want to pop in there and get them or get a hold of Geronimo or Radar.

Welcome back to town goes to an old time C.B.'er, the one Spook, who moved back here from Garlic City. He found out the grass is greener right here. (Well, it could be).

Belated congratulations go out to Black Cat and his better half on the arrival of their newborn son awhile back. You can speak to us now, Luc.

Speaking with Don Morehouse (Candyman) the other day, we find out that there is going to be an Amateur Ham Radio course offered for those that are interested in it. Registration is on the 23rd at the Terrace Arena Banquet Room between 12 noon and 7 p.m. Further information can be acquired by looking it up in the booklet that the S.D. 88 has out now.

Moon-Shadow, let's us both face facts and give up...I'm not Cinderella and you're not a prince, so either return my slipper or better yet, come get the other one and for the first time you'll have a matching pair. Such a good feeling.

Oh dear...heard that Frog is 10-7 on his base for awhile considering that his ears are laying on top of his neighbor's roof. Strong winds, huh?

A howdy to the one Chimo who lives here and who we seem to see at least once every two years, whether we need to or not...gonna have to get with it guy.

Sandman, what you said would never happen, has happened...would you believe that the one and only Stoned Ranger has graced the best after hours diner in town, with his unique presence and best table manners and even admits that the chow is good so it looks like it's your turn now to join us there. See, wonders do happen. Eh Bill?? Tonto....H-E-L-P!

According to Tennessee Toad, there are Piranhas in town and this is probably the same flesh eating fish that told us that Tennessee Toad would never make it as a fireman. Gotta get more on this one, with or without the famous Tarzan yell.

Belated birthday greetings go out to my 44, Sugar Britches and to Boozy's 44, Riv-et, Riv-et. A welcome to our town also goes out to Rockcrusher's parents who are here visiting from Nelson.

Hear Moon-Shadow doesn't have to worry about burglars. Could it be it's because his doorknob is six inches off the ground and even he has a hard time finding it??

New way to reduce some of that flab on your thighs! Try dancing and shake a tamborine against your thighs in time to the music. It's guaranteed to leave you lots of black and purple bruises if nothing else, and they hurt.

O.K. folks, it's that time again where I had better go 10-7 and rest after taxing my overworked brain (I do so have one), so to all of you good people have yourselves a good day and a better one tomorrow and remember that life is a mirror. If you frown at it, it frowns back, but if you smile, it returns the greeting. So keep smilin', it'll make people wonder what you've been up to, if nothing else. 3's for now and take care.

RCMP officer admits talk about dynamite scare plot

OTTAWA (CP) — RCMP Cpl. Normand Chamberland testified Wednesday he was mistaken when he told RCMP investigators 15 months ago that he and two other Mounties discussed putting dynamite they were going to take in the residence of Jacques Desormeaux, an alleged Montreal terrorist.

Chamberland told a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing that the Mounties actually had discussed using the dynamite to turn Desormeaux into an informant, or scare him out of the movement, by making him think his fingerprints were on it.

The idea never went any further than conversation, he said, because it was "too odd."

Chamberland told internal investigators in writing June, 1977, that the conversation took place before he joined Cpl. Bernard Dubuc and Constable Richard Daigle the night they took dynamite from a shed in the Eastern Townships.

He told the royal commission he was wrong about this too. The conversation had taken place several days after the dynamite was taken in 1972.

Royal Commissioner Guy Gilbert asked how Chamberland could make such an error in a written statement. Chamberland said he really thought at the time that the conversation had taken place before the dynamite incident.

Davis still getting his federal pension

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Sun says former federal and provincial cabinet minister Jack Davis is getting about $18,225 a year from his federal MP pension which will increase with the cost of living.

Davis, 62, was convicted Sept. 11 of defrauding the provincial government of $1,074 in travel expenses. He was fined $1,000 and placed on probation for two months.

During Davis's county court trial, his lawyer said Davis would only have a small pension to live on if he was deprived of the $20,000 he received as a provincial MLA and cabinet minister.

Provincial and federal pension plan spokesman said Tuesday that Davis is not eligible for any provincial pension, but has been receiving his federal pension since 1975.

In Ottawa, Paul Powers, manager of the House of Commons pension plan, said Davis has been receiving his federal pension since his defeat in the 1974 federal election. He would not reveal the amount of the pension.

The Sun says Davis is entitled to a basic maximum pension of $13,500 which, including increases pegged to the consumer price index, totalled $18,225 by 1977.

Davis, who announced his resignation as an MLA shortly before being sentenced is a former provincial energy and transport minister.

ARTS COUNCIL

Funding still sought

The first meeting of the Northwest Regional Arts Council for this season took place in Terrace on September 3rd.

Rhoda Witherley of Prince Rupert is still actively seeking funding from the Regional Arts Council for an Artists-in-Residence program featuring the York Winds. Val George of Terrace reported that little response has been received from members concerning corrections and additions for the Regional Arts Directory. The representatives of the Community Arts Councils were asked to bring the matter to the attention of their councils. A deadline of September 30 was set for submissions to Val George. A touring art exhibit for the northwest region is in the planning stages for the spring of 1979.

Interested artists may contact Valerie Hillen, General Delivery, Burns Lake, B.C.

A committee was created to assemble materials that will help set up local arts councils in more northwest communities.

A motion allocating up to $1,000 to sponsor a minimum of six regional concerts by Enire Six Dance Company was passed. Council's intention is to sponsor performances in small communities though larger communities may be included on the tour.

The next meeting of the Northwest Regional Arts Council is planned for November 26, 1978 in Terrace.

NOTICE

With sincere regret Chop Suey Garden Restaurant in Terrace wishes to advise its customers that it cannot continue free home delivery. Effective immediately we will continue to give our usual prompt service in every other capacity.

REMEMBER YOUR LICENCE

The British Columbia Fish and Wildlife Branch reminds all hunters that both a current British Columbia hunting licence and a federal permit are required when hunting migratory game birds (ducks, geese, coots, snipe, band-tailed pigeons and mourning doves).

Federal permits are available only at post offices and cost $3.50. Hunters are urged to obtain permits early to avoid possible delays.

Parent-teacher night turn out excellent

There was a good turn-out of parents Monday evening to meet the teachers of the Thornhill Elementary School. It was an evening designed to familiarize parents with the core curriculum as well as other aspects of our modern educational system. Principal Roy Greening introduced all the teachers to the parents, some of whom are new to the district or new to the school.

Following the introduction and opening remarks the parents were asked to visit the classrooms and hear more about the subjects taught in the particular grades. Again, the main purpose of the evening was simply to get acquainted with the parents and they with the teachers.

BY CNIB

Blitz planned

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind will be conducting its annual blitz of Terrace, Monday, October 2. Fred Koalenz, district administrator of the CNIB told the Downtown Lions club Monday.

The actual work of arranging canvassers and co-ordinating the blitz is carried out by the Lions Club which has a long affiliation with the CNIB.

Koalenz, who is blind himself, covers the territory from Alaska Highway 101 to Fort St. John, east to Stewart and west to the Queen Charlotte Islands for the CNIB. He outlined how the money raised for the institute is used.

"I did this mainly for the information of new Lion members, since most of the old-timers are very aware of the work done by the CNIB," Koalenz said.

Last year the blitz, which is carried out from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m., realized approximately $5,500. Businesses in town are canvassed during the day by members of the Lions club.

"We never set a definite target figure, but naturally we would like to do a little better this year, considering inflation," Koalenz said.

A fund raising drive will also be underway soon in Kitimat but the Lions club there do things a little differently. They don't conduct a blitz, Koalenz added.

MR. AND MRS. MULLENS

Vows said in Kitimat

A summer wedding took place August 19 between Sheryl Lyn Guiknecht and Rolf Mullens of Kitimat. The bride's parents, Helen and Emil Guiknecht have been residents of Kitimat for 23 years while the groom, son of Ann and Harry Mullens of Regina, Sask., has been living in Kitimat for the past seven years.

The vows were solemnized at the Kitimat First United Church with the father of the groom, Harry Mullens, officiating. Sheryl Lyn was given away by both her parents. Her attendants were Alice Letourneau, maid of honor while her bridesmaids were Carla Mullens, Sandra Maltern and Patty Tasker. The ring bearer and flower girl were Jerrard Zuchotki and Laura Laturneau.

Tony Mullens was best man while the ushers were Rod Guiknecht, Russ Guiknecht and Harlan Christiansen.

The bride was beautifully attired in a Pois De Sois gown with a sculptured pearl bodice. Her short veil was held by a pearl headpiece and she carried a bouquet of yellow carnations, white daisies and baby's breath.

The maid of honor wore a lovely gown of peach floral design with the bridesmaids being attired in yellow polyester, all carried bouquets of yellow carnations, white daisies and fern. The charming flower girl carried a basket of white daisies and carnations.

A pink full gown complemented by a lacecape was chosen by the mother of the bride and the groom's mother chose an orange and white floral gown.

The reception and buffet dinner, catered by the bride's mother, took place at the Legion with approximately 170 guests in attendance.

Ron St. Germaine was Master of Ceremonies and the toast to the bride was proposed by Larry Beely. The toast to the bridesmaids was made by Tony Mullens and Randy Guiknecht gave the toast to the parents of the bride and groom.

An evening of dancing followed with music supplied by Glen De Gay.

Out of town guests included the grandmother of the bride, Mrs. M. Monk, Mrs. M. Van Lo of Regina, grandmother of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. H. Mullens; Regina, Sask.; Lloyd Curle, Harlan and Jacolyn Christiansen; Travis and Darren McDougal, all of Eriksdale, Man.; as well as Bob Coleen and Louise Thome, Brian and Lorraine Belina of Terrace.

After a short honeymoon at Lakelse Hot Springs the happy couple have made their home at 65 Wedene Street in Kitimat.

Do your Canada Savings Bonds mature this year?

Here are three easy steps to help you reinvest in new Canada Savings Bonds

1 Locate and identify your bonds

Two Series of Canada Savings Bonds mature this fall:

- 1969/70 Series ($24) maturing November 1, 1978,
- 1968 Special Replacement Series (SR) maturing October 1, 1979.

Look for "S24" or "SR" preceding the serial number on the corner of your maturing bonds.

2 Find out the cash value of your bonds

At maturity, every holder of "S24" or "SR" bonds will receive the face value shown on the bond, plus a special cash bonus payment. In addition, depending on the type of bond you own and whether you have been clipping your interest coupons, you may also be entitled to receive interest up to an amount equal to the face value of your bonds. For example, if you own a $1,000 Coupon Bond with all interest coupons attached, you will receive at maturity:

	S24	SR
Face Value	$1,000.00	$1,000.00
Cash Bonus
Payment	115.00	177.50
Regular and Compound Interest	1,000.00	1,000.00
TOTAL VALUE	$2,115.00	$2,177.50

If you have any questions about the value of your bonds, just ask the people where you bank or invest after October 1.

3 Special arrangements make it easy to reinvest

After October 1, simply present your "S24" or "SR" Series Canada Savings Bonds to your bank or other authorized redemption agent. All the paper work in connection with the redemption of your bonds will be done for you at that time. Holders of "SR" bonds will receive their funds immediately. For "S24" bonds the transfer of funds will take place automatically on November 1, the maturity date of this Series.

In the same transaction, you can sign up for your new Canada Savings Bonds. And this year there is a dual purchase limit. You may reinvest all proceeds from your maturing bonds, including face value, cash bonus and interest, in the new Series. In addition, you may also buy up to $30,000 of the new Bonds. It's a great way to keep your money working for you!

Act soon

There are more than 900,000 Canadians who own maturing bonds. If you are one of them, go to your bank, investment dealer, trust company or credit union as soon as possible after October 1 and avoid the rush!

New Canada Savings Bonds offer you a great choice

New Canada Savings Bonds are dated November 1, 1978 and yield an average annual interest of 8.90% when held to maturity in 1985. Each new bond earns interest of 8.50% the first year and 9% for each of the remaining 6 years.

And you have a choice of bonds. There's a Regular Interest Bond that pays interest each year by cheque or, if you prefer, by direct deposit into your chequing or savings account. And a Compound Interest Bond that reinvests your interest automatically after the first year at the guaranteed annual rate of 8.90%.

Whichever type of bond you choose, you will own a safe, secure investment which can be turned into instant cash whenever you need it. Buying Canada Savings Bonds has been a great Canadian tradition for over 30 years. They're the proven choice.
